Theme of the Conference

Computing and Communication Technologies in Computer Science are areas that are characterized by continued advances in existing technologies, pioneering trends and new theories at a rapid pace than most areas of science and technology. The last decade is marked by the development of many technologies and strategies in improving the efficiency of computation. The current networked world has created a global landscape and a mandate for a significant change. The Internet has enabled communication and collaboration across the world and brought many computing models.

The proposed conference will discuss about computing techniques, how computing techniques are used in various fields and how we can implement the output of computing systems in an intelligent way using the state-of-the-art methods and by using Advanced Communication technologies around the globe. The conference will serve as a platform for fruitful interaction among research scholars, scientists, academicians, industry people and policy makers.
