Sri Padmavati Mahila Visvavidyalayam (Women's University) was founded in the year 1983 by Sri N.T.Rama Rao, the then Chief Minister of Andhra Pradesh, with the fervent desire to train women students as better builders of the nation and to inculcate skills of leadership in all aspects of life. The University started with 10 faculties, 300 students and twenty staff members and at present it has a student population nearly 5000, and academic staff of 100 and also 150 academic consultants. The campus is spread out in a lush green area of 130.8 acres and has courses at the post-graduate and undergraduate level and a good component of research. The university continues to produce graduates who are equipped to contribute to the Intellectual, social, political, moral and material development of the societies in which they are to live. It continues to undertake training, research, consultancy and other forms of services to local and regional communities, which enriches teaching and advances the quest for wisdom and truth. The university is situated at a distance of 3Km from the Railway and Bus stations of Tirupati.

About the Department:

A well designed curriculum, rigorous field work geared towards acquiring practice based knowledge and skills, field work seminars and lab sessions, continuous and Comprehensive evaluations are some of the highlights of the M.S.W Course. With the presence of experienced teachers from reputed schools of social work in India, conduct of national level events, engaging in international and national research projects, consultancy, apart from the regular activities are the hallmarks of the department.

About the Seminar:

In the Present day world, the challenges faced by the adolescents are enormous. For example-Challenges in growing up, Challenges as students, Challenges as out of school adolescents etc., they have to measure up to the high expectation (not always realistic) of the parents, teachers, peers and Society. As a result of these complex situations, adolescents face challenges in life.

This generates stress and vulnerability for them. In many cases, adolescents find themselves not adequately prepared to handle these challenges. Therefore it is our duty in an assured and constructive manner, to transmit values that are important for their development and welfare.
